Latonia Lakes- A Road to... a New Beginning

LATONIA LAKES RESORT

ONCE A KENTON COUNTY SUMMER DAY AWAY

BY ROBERT D. WEBBER

The big community of Latonia Lakes, now which is a part of Covington, Kentucky, was developed as a summer resort and weekend getaway destination. It is located on the eastern bank of the Ohio River, just downstream from Cincinnati. The city of Covington, independently incorporated from Kenton County, surrounded the city completely.

In the 1950 newspaper advertisement, stated, it was "Kentucky's Beauty Spot". Promoted as a place to go for a day, it was located between the suburbs of Covington, Ravenna and Crestwood. It offered a place to cool off, relax and meditate for a while. The lake contained resorts located further away.

The place is the original Coffman Lake, during a weekend party in the summer.
